REPORT TO CONGRESS ON
VOTING PRACTICES IN THE UNITED NATIONS
1989

SECTION I

INTRODUCTION

Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering

The seventh annual report on voting practices in the principal bodies of the United Nations is submitted to Congress pursuant to Public Law 101-167. Prepared by the Secretary of State and the Representative to the United Nations in New York in close collaboration, this report is a guide to voting patterns of individual member states and geographical regions in the main bodies of the United Nations--the General Assembly (UNGA) and the Security Council (UNSC). Voting is the culmination of UN activity; before the voting, a great deal of other important activity takes place--articulation of views, negotiation, lobbying, coalition-building. Unfortunately, time and space only permit analysis of voting which, nevertheless, provides one vehicle for assessing the performance of UN member states on issues before these bodies.

Votes of member states in the UN are important to the United States because they often significantly affect major U.S. foreign policy interests. Much time and effort is devoted to trying to persuade fellow UN members to understand and adopt our views. Although UNGA resolutions and decisions are not, with limited exceptions, legally binding on member states, they are nevertheless highly significant because: 1) they largely determine the policies of constituent UN bodies; 2) they focus world attention on some problems, while deflecting it from others; 3) they generally reflect priorities of members with respect to international issues; and 4) they are widely interpreted as the view of the international community on these issues.

In examining the voting records of UN member states, it should be borne in mind that behavior in the United Nations is but one dimension of a country's relations with the United States. Economic, strategic, and political issues can be--and often are--more important to U.S. interests. Even so, no country's behavior at the UN is irrelevant to its bilateral relationship with the United States. Because many decisions and policies reached in key UN bodies affect U.S. foreign policy, so do many of the votes and actions of member states in those key UN bodies.

FORMAT AND METHODOLOGY

As required by PL 101-167, this year's Voting Practices Report has several new elements. First, a separate section has been added on resolutions and decisions adopted by consensus, which in the 44th UNGA constituted 70 percent (up from 64 percent the previous year) of all resolutions and decisions adopted. In light of the far-reaching importance of some consensus resolutions, these are discussed in detail. The importance of these key consensus resolutions is further illustrated by their inclusion in a table combining important votes and consensus decisions in Section V. Second, the "10 key issues" of previous reports have been replaced by a broader list of "important votes"--16 at the 44th UNGA.

Sections of this report present overall voting coincidence scores comparing U.S. performance with all other member states on all plenary votes. The methodology used to determine these scores is the same as in previous reports. As in the past, this score must be interpreted carefully with several caveats in mind. First, the percentage of "voting coincidence" is calculated on the basis of Yes/No votes only: the number of times in which identical votes (Yes/Yes or No/No) were cast by the United States and a given country, divided by the total number of times in which the United States and the other country voted Yes or No. Abstentions and absences are excluded from the tally. Although this is the same method as that used for the 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, 42nd and 43rd UNGAs, both the subjects and content of resolutions vary from year to year, so statistical comparisons are not precise.

It is useful to recall some of the problems with this methodology. First, data used to determine the overall level of "voting coincidence" with the United States are drawn only from recorded votes and exclude the large number of resolutions and decisions, many of great importance to the United States, adopted by consensus. Therefore, the "voting coincidence" statistics are based on a minority of UNGA actions. Second, the methodology does not take into account votes on which either the United States or the member state whose performance is being measured abstained or did not vote. As is evident in the lobbying of the United States before crucial votes are taken, abstentions and deliberate absences can be of great help or hindrance to U.S. interests.

Third, the current methodology is predicated on the assumption that all issues are of equal importance to the United States, which is clearly not the case. We have tried to ameliorate this problem by highlighting important votes in a separate section of the report. In this section, however, we are unable to discriminate as finely as we would like. As a prime example, sometimes major achievements are not even categorized as votes, as was the case this year when the U.S. successfully lobbied to defer consideration of the PLO's move to enhance its status at the UN. Finally, data in this report do not reflect behind-the-scenes support for, or opposition to, U.S. Government policies in the United Nations. These actions are often as significant as actual votes in terms of their influence on U.S. interests in the UN.

OVERVIEW

The 44th session of the UN General Assembly was one of the most constructive in recent memory. Most speeches in the general debate stressed optimism and pragmatism, and downplayed confrontation. Name-calling aimed at the United States was virtually eliminated from UN resolutions and documents.

Continued UN efforts to help resolve regional conflicts were a major feature of the 44th UNGA. Concurrent with this General Assembly, free and fair elections in Namibia were carried out in accordance with relevant Security Council resolutions and with the major assistance of UNTAG (UN Transition Assistance Group). Rapid changes in most Eastern European countries resulted in greater East-West cooperation. Improved relations with the Soviet Union (whose troops pulled out of Afghanistan in 1989) were marked by the first major joint U.S.-Soviet initiative in UNGA history, a resolution on enhancing international peace, security and cooperation which was adopted by consensus. Also, for the first time ever, a major declaration against apartheid was adopted by consensus.

The 44th UNGA was receptive to U.S. initiatives. U.S.-initiated resolutions on compliance with arms control agreements, periodic and genuine elections, promotion of women in the Secretariat, and a moratorium on driftnet fishing were all adopted by consensus. On key recorded votes, such as the deferral of the Arab challenge to Israeli credentials and reaffirmation of Cambodia's right to choose its own future, a record number of member states voted with the U.S. Finally, the international consensus against terrorism was reestablished with the adoption of the strongest condemnation, to date, of terrorism.

The 44th UNGA also continued implementation of UN administrative and budgetary reforms. A biennial budget of just under $2 billion, lower than the Secretary General's initial proposed budget, was adopted by consensus for only the second time in UN history. (In fact, all individual budget and management resolutions were adopted by consensus in this UNGA.) Furthermore, the budget contained a 12% reduction in staff, as well as termination of 10 out of a proposed 14 high-level posts, despite vigorous opposition by some delegations whose nationals would be affected.

If these trends--UN activism on regional conflicts, increasing numbers of consensus decisions, support for U.S. initiatives, UN administrative and budgetary reform--continue, the UN will become an even more viable forum for articulating and advancing U.S. foreign policy objectives.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The 44th session of the General Assembly, with 158 members participating, began its work on September 19 and held 88 plenary sessions in 1989, concluding on December 29. It adopted by recorded vote and consensus a total of 331 resolutions and 60 decisions.

The UNGA gave welcome impetus to ongoing trends in international relations, including respect for human rights and a willingness to come to grips with such worldwide concerns as narcotics, terrorism and the environment. It provided the scene for a concrete chemical arms control initiative by President Bush, which received a positive response from Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze.

Among the most significant achievements of the 44th UNGA were:

- Record support for deferral of the challenge to Israel's credentials (including a switch by the Soviet Union and many of its supporters from opposition to abstention), demonstrating that the vast majority of member states want to keep Israel in the UN.
- Reaffirmation, by a record number of votes, of the need for a comprehensive political settlement in Cambodia and of opposition to the return of the Khmer Rouge.
- A consensus resolution on Afghanistan (including the Soviet Union) which called for implementation of the Geneva agreement, welcomed completion of Soviet troop withdrawal, reaffirmed the right of the Afghan people to determine their own form of government, and called on all parties to work to achieve a, comprehensive political solution.
- Reestablishment of the international consensus against terrorism in a strengthened resolution containing a more categorical condemnation of terrorism and eliminating various loopholes to the condemnation.
- Deferral of the PLO attempt to enhance its status.
- Consensus adoption of the U.S.-Soviet resolution on peace and security, along with Soviet agreement to withdraw (and not reintroduce) an initiative on a comprehensive approach to international security (CSIS), which we strongly opposed.

-- At a Special Session of the UNGA on apartheid, a breakthrough on UNGA decisions regarding Southern Africa with consensus adoption of a major declaration against apartheid.

-- On human rights, issuance by the Iranian government of a formal invitation to the UN's human rights rapporteur to visit Iran.

-- Consensus adoption of U.S.-sponsored resolutions on compliance with arms control agreements, periodic and genuine elections, the promotion of women in the UN Secretariat, and a moratorium on large-scale pelagic driftnet fishing.

-- Election of U.S. candidates to the ICSC (International Civil Service Commission) and the JIU (Joint Inspection Unit) in hotly-contested competition. Continued U.S. participation in both these subsidiary UN organs will benefit efforts toward continued reform and fiscal restraint.

The United States continued to confront problems in the UNGA. U.S. efforts to combat unhelpful, if not counterproductive, resolutions resulted in some modified language and, occasionally, withdrawal of the resolutions. Nevertheless, the UNGA continued to adopt unbalanced and unhelpful resolutions on the Middle East, Nicaragua and Southern Africa. Almost all resolutions on the Middle East were one-sided and consequently did not contribute to advancing the peace process. Over strong U.S. objections, the UNGA adopted one obsolete resolution calling for U.S. compliance with the 1986 International Court of Justice decision in the Nicaragua case and another resolution criticizing the U.S. trade embargo against Nicaragua. The tone of apartheid resolutions (adopted in advance of the Special Session on Apartheid) was somewhat improved, but most of them did not adequately reflect changing circumstances in South Africa.

U.S. military action in Panama late in the UNGA brought a predictable reaction from states which opposed it. Following a veto in the Security Council by the United States, United Kingdom and France of a resolution deploring the intervention, Cuba and Nicaragua brought a similar resolution to the UNGA. Active U.S. representations resulted in less than half the membership voting for the resolution (there was a large number of abstentions and absences), serving to undermine it.

In some instances, the U.S. succeeded in mitigating or eliminating measures we opposed. The U.S. was able to prevent broad Western support for a conference on the military presence of non-regional powers in the Indian Ocean. It was possible to obtain withdrawal of an unhelpful proposal to establish a director general's office for peacekeeping. The Secretary General's proposal to increase the working capital fund by $100-200 million as a solution to the financial crisis was shelved.

On other issues, the United States was less successful. A resolution to expand the membership of the UN Human Rights Commission was adopted over our strong objections. Efforts at ECOSOC revitalization were stalled in plenary. A draft resolution which we cosponsored on freedom of assembly and expression had to be withdrawn in the face of hostile amendments. The U.S. voted in isolation or near-isolation on a number of disarmament resolutions. Finally, although the resolution on international debt that was adopted did not challenge the mandate of international financial institutions, the U.S. remained unable to support it.

SECURITY COUNCIL

The UN Security Council, composed of the five Permanent Members (China, France, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom and United States) and ten Non-Permanent Members (Algeria, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Ethiopia, Finland, Malaysia, Nepal, Senegal and Yugoslavia) met 69 times in 1989. Eighteen of the 25 UNSC resolutions were adopted by consensus, covering such critical areas as the establishment or extension of UN observer or peacekeeping groups in Central America, Cyprus, Lebanon, Iran and Iraq, the Golan Heights (Israeli-occupied territories) and Namibia. The Security Council process of bringing independence to Namibia and holding elections was monitored closely by the UNSC, which unanimously adopted five resolutions on the subject. The Security Council adopted two anti-terrorism resolutions strongly condemning the use of plastic explosives and hostage-taking. The unanimous adoption of 18 resolutions reflected the increased degree of cooperation which marked Security Council proceedings in 1989.

The United States, supported by Permanent Members France and the United Kingdom, and Non-Permanent Member Canada, vetoed two resolutions seeking to condemn the U.S. for: 1) shooting down two Libyan aircraft and 2) intervening in Panama. The other three draft resolutions which the U.S. vetoed concerned Israel and the occupied territories; these resolutions made sweeping condemnations of Israeli policies and practices without any reference to acts of violence by the other side. The United States abstained on two resolutions concerning deportations of Palestinians. The U.S. statements noted our opposition to deportation, while we also recognized the strain of the uprising on Israeli security and the fact that continuous recourse to UNSC resolutions does little to advance the peace process.

SECTION II

OVERALL PLENARY VOTES

There were 143 recorded plenary votes at the 44th UNGA--116 on resolutions as a whole, 21 on separate paragraphs, 3 on procedure, and 3 on decisions. Of these 143 votes, the U.S. voted Yes 14 times and No 95 times; it abstained on 32 votes and did not participate on 2 (on Antarctica). The United States voted No alone in plenary 20 times during the 44th UNGA, and with only one other country on 29 occasions (Israel 19 times, United Kingdom 8 times, France and Turkey once each). Seven times the United States voted No with two other countries, and four times with three other countries. In these latter categories, in addition to France, Israel and the United Kingdom, the United States was variously joined by Dominica, the FRG, Japan, the Netherlands and Portugal.

Overall votes tables in this and subsequent sections are based on the 109 times when the United States voted either Yes or No. Columns give the number of times the United States and the country listed cast identical (Yes/Yes or No/No) and opposite (Yes/No or No/Yes) votes, as well as the number of times the country abstained or was absent for these 109 votes.

"Voting Coincidence" percentages in this and other sections of the report are calculated on the basis of these 109 recorded votes. The percentages exclude resolutions adopted in plenary without vote or by consensus, as well as committee votes. They are derived by dividing the number of identical (Yes/Yes or No/No) votes by the total number of identical and opposite votes on which the United States and the country listed both voted Yes or No. This is the same method used in the six previous editions of this report. However, both subject and content of resolutions vary from year to year, so statistical comparisons are not precise.

Section II is divided into three parts. The first lists all countries alphabetically and in rank order by voting coincidence percentage. The second lists countries by UN regional grouping in rank order. The last lists countries by other important groupings, again in rank order by voting coincidence percentage.

SECTION III A

IMPORTANT VOTES: LISTING AND DESCRIPTION

Public Law 101-167 requires a listing of "all such votes on issues which directly affected important United States interests and on which the United States lobbied extensively." The 16 issues listed and described below were judged as meeting these criteria at the 44th UNGA.

The issues reflect broad U.S. interest in General Assembly matters and include regional and functional issues. Of the 16, five concern the Middle East (including Israeli credentials and Palestinian refugees), another five address arms control matters (including the Indian Ocean Zone of Peace), and two concern Nicaragua (the 1986 International Court of Justice ruling and the trade embargo). Others deal with Kampuchea, Panama (U.S. military intervention), information (establishment of a New World Information and Communication Order), and human rights (expansion of the UN Human Rights Commission).

The first line of each item below lists the resolution number (if applicable), date of the vote, and results (Yes-No-Abstain), with the U.S. vote shown in parentheses. The first paragraph summarizes the subject matter of each vote, and the second paragraph explains the U.S. position.

1. Israeli Credentials

Motion	October 17	95 (US)-37-15

Takes no action on a Libyan draft amendment that would have rejected the Israeli delegation's credentials.

The U.S. supported this Danish procedural motion whereby the GA decided to take no action on an Arab challenge to Israel's credentials to participate at the 44th UNGA. The Soviet Union and most of the Eastern European bloc switched from opposition in 1988 to abstention in 1989.

2. Situation in Kampuchea

A/Res 44/22 November 16 124 (US) -17-12

Reiterates the GA's conviction that withdrawal of all foreign forces, non-return to condemned policies of the recent past, and commitment by all states to non-interference and non-intervention are, inter alia, principal components of a just resolution of the Kampuchean problem; withdrawal of forces without UN supervision, control and verification is not within the framework of a comprehensive political settlement.

The United States seeks a comprehensive settlement to end the Cambodian conflict which provides for the verified withdrawal of Vietnamese troops, prevention of the Khmer Rouge return to power and genuine self-determination of the Cambodian people. This vote was taken following the inconclusive outcome of a Paris Conference on Kampuchea and the announced departure by Hanoi of its troops from Kampuchea by the end of September 1989. In 1988 the Kampuchea resolution was adopted 122-19-13.

3. Situation in the Middle East

Paragraph vote December 4 63-35 (US)-47

Separate vote on operative paragraph 10 of draft resolution adopted as A/Res/44/40A (Issue #4), which considers that strategic cooperation agreement between the U.S. and Israel has encouraged Israel to pursue aggressive and expansionist policies.

The United States generally opposes most resolutions under the perennial agenda item entitled Situation in the Middle East, which tend to be omnibus criticisms of Israel that are counterproductive. The United States called for a paragraph vote in this instance to remove language critical of U.S. strategic cooperation with Israel.

4. Situation in the Middle East: Palestine and International Peace Conference

A/Res/44/40A December 4 109-18 (US)-31

Reaffirms that the Palestine question is at the core of the Middle East conflict and must be solved with the participation of all parties, including the PLO; endorses the Arab Peace Plan adopted at Fez and Casablanca; condemns continued Israeli occupation of Palestinian territory; considers that U.S.-Israeli strategic cooperation agreement has encouraged Israeli aggressive policies; and reaffirms the call for an international peace conference.

5. Situation in the Middle East: Golan Heights

A/Res/44/40B December 4 84-22 (US)-49

Declares that Israeli occupation of the Golan Heights is illegal and should be considered null and void; strongly deplores the veto by a Security Council permanent member preventing adoption of "appropriate measures" (sanctions); and calls upon all member states to take specified actions against Israel.

The United States voted against this sweeping condemnation of Israel's occupation of the Golan Heights which criticized U.S. vetoes in the Security Council of resolutions on the situation in the Middle East.

6. International Court of Justice Judgment re Nicaragua

A/Res/44/43

December 7

91-2(US)-41

Having considered continued financing by the U.S. of military activities in and against Nicaragua, the resolution urgently calls for full and immediate compliance with the ICJ judgment in the case of "military and paramilitary activities in and against Nicaragua."

By exploiting widespread misunderstanding and disagreement with U.S. policy in Central America and the broader issue of respect for the ICJ, Nicaragua achieved UNGA adoption of this resolution for a fourth time. The United States strongly opposed this resolution, which deals with only one aspect of the situation in Central America and is unhelpful to the peace process.

7. UNRWA: Assistance to Palestine Refugees

A/Res 44/47A

December 8

134(US)-0-1

Regrets that the UN Conciliation Commission for Palestine is unable to give effect to paragraph 11 of UNGA Resolution 194(III) regarding repatriation or compensation for Palestinian refugees; requests continuing efforts toward implementation of that paragraph; notes the continuing seriousness of UNRWA's financial position; and decides to extend UNRWA to June 30, 1993.

The United States is the largest single donor to UNRWA (United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestinian Refugees in the Near East), and strongly supports UNRWA programs of education, health and relief services to over two million Palestinian refugees. This resolution is one the U.S. traditionally sponsors. Israel abstained on this vote.

8. Questions Relating to Information

A/Res/44/50

December 8

127-2(US)-21

Urges full implementation of recommendations by the Committee on Information, which include the establishment of a New World Information and Communication Order, strengthening information infrastructures in developing countries, supporting and assisting UNESCO, and strengthening the role of the UN Department of Public Information.

The United States opposes resolutions containing elements which might be cited to justify restrictions on fundamental freedoms such as the free flow of information and freedom of the press. The United States voted against this resolution, which included a call for the establishment of a "new world information and communication order."

9. Cessation of All Nuclear Test Explosions

A/Res/44/105

December 15

136-3(US)-13

Urges depository powers of the Limited Test Ban Treaty (LTBT) and Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) to halt all nuclear test explosions, and asks members of the Conference on Disarmament to promote establishment of an ad hoc committee to negotiate a comprehensive test ban treaty.

Depositories of the LTBT and NPT are the United States, United Kingdom and Soviet Union. This perennial Mexican initiative is in fundamental conflict with U.S. policy on nuclear testing and deterrence. In 1988 it was adopted by an almost identical vote of 136-4-13, when the Yemen Arab Republic joined the United States, United Kingdom and France in voting against it.

10. Amendment of the Limited Test Ban Treaty

A/Res/44/106

December 15

127-2(US)-22

Recommends that a preparatory committee, open to all parties of the Treaty Banning Nuclear Tests in the Atmosphere, in Outer Space and Under Water, be established and meet at UN Headquarters in 1990 to make arrangements for an amendment conference.

The U.S. opposed this Mexican-sponsored resolution, which is designed to convert the LTBT into a comprehensive test ban (CTB). In 1988 the vote was 127-3-21, and the United Kingdom, France and the United States voted against it; at the 44th UNGA, France announced it would not participate in the vote.

11. Prevention of an Arms Race in Outer Space

A/Res/44/112

December 15

153-1(US)-0

Reaffirms that general and complete disarmament under effective international control warrants that outer space be used exclusively for peaceful purposes; recognizes the need to reinforce the legal regime applicable to outer space; requests the Conference on Disarmament to reestablish an ad hoc committee to negotiate an agreement to prevent the arms race in outer space; and urges the United States and the Soviet Union to pursue bilateral negotiations.

The United States opposes any resolution that could impact negatively on our SDI or shuttle programs, and it rejects third country attempts to influence our negotiations on arms control matters with the Soviet Union. The United States called for five separate paragraph votes on this resolution, all of which were defeated (139-1(US)-13, 137-1(US)-13, 136-1(US)-13, 139-1(US)-13 and 139-1(US)-13). In 1988 a similar resolution was adopted by a vote of 154-1(US)-0.

12. Nuclear Arms Freeze

A/Res/44/117D

December 15

136-13(US)-5

Urges the United States and the Soviet Union to agree to an immediate nuclear arms freeze which would provide for total stoppage of any further production of nuclear arms and cut off production of fissionable material for weapons purposes.

The United States opposed this resolution, which would undermine such basic defense concepts as deterrence and flexible response. This annual Mexican resolution was adopted in 1988 by a vote of 135-12(US)-3; Portugal, absent in 1988, voted No in 1989.

13. Indian Ocean Zone of Peace

A/Res/44/120 December 15 137-4(US)-14

Reaffirms support for the achievement of the objectives of the Declaration of the Indian Ocean as a Zone of Peace; reiterates the decision to convene a conference on the Indian Ocean; and renews the mandate of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Indian Ocean.

The United States opposes the convening of a conference addressing the military presence of non-regional powers in the Indian Ocean.

14. Enlargement of the Commission on Human Rights

A/Res/44/167 December 15 151-2(US)-2

Decides to recommend that ECOSOC take the necessary steps, at its first regular session of 1990, to expand the membership of the Commission on Human Rights.

The United States believes the question of expansion should be directly linked with making the Commission more effective. It was prepared to support a draft resolution which treated these two elements in the same paragraph, but the final text eliminated this policy connection and the U.S. voted against it.

15. Trade Embargo Against Nicaragua

A/Res/44/217 December 22 82-2(US)-47

Deplores the continuation of the trade embargo (sanctions) against Nicaragua and asks that the measures be revoked.

The United States strongly opposed this resolution. U.S. trade restrictions against Nicaragua are not improper, and neither international law nor the UN Charter precludes actions by an individual state to safeguard its security in determining its bilateral trade relations.

16. Military Intervention in Panama

A/Res/44/240 December 29 75-20(US)-40

Strongly deplores U.S. intervention in Panama, and demands withdrawal of U.S. armed forces from Panama.

This resolution, directed at the December 1989 U.S. military intervention in Panama, was brought to the UNGA by Nicaragua and Cuba shortly after a similar resolution was vetoed in the Security Council.

SECTION III B

IMPORTANT VOTES: COMPARISON WITH U.S. VOTES

The two tables in this section summarize UN member performance in comparison with the United States on the 16 important votes listed and described in Section III A. In these tables, "Identical Votes" is the total number of times the United States and the listed state both voted Yes or No on these 16 issues. "Absentions" and "Absences" are totals for the country being compared (the United States voted either Yes or No on all 16). "Opposite Votes" is the total number of times that the United States voted Yes and the listed state No, or the United States voted No and the listed state Yes. "Voting Coincidence" is calculated by dividing the number of identical votes by the total of identical and opposite votes.

The first table lists UN member states in alphabetical order. The second lists them by identical votes in descending order; those states with the same number of identical votes are further ranked by the number of opposite votes in ascending order.

SECTION III D

IMPORTANT VOTES: COUNTRY LISTINGS

There are 159 members of the United Nations. This section contains country-by-country information on 157 of them (excluding the United States and South Africa, which, again in 1989, did not participate in the UNGA).

Each country listing includes the following information:

- The UN regional group and other major groupings to which the member state belongs.
- Summary voting coincidence percentages drawn from other sections of the book. "Important Votes" is described in Section III B, "Important Consensus Actions and Votes" in Section V and "Overall Votes" in Section II.
- Each country's votes on the 16 important votes at the 44th UNGA.

The 16 important votes are more fully described in Section III A. A country's vote on each of these issues is listed in the "Votes" column (the U.S. vote is included in parentheses for purposes of comparison). Symbols used are Y=Yes, N=No, A=Abstain and X=Absent.

To avoid unnecessary duplication, the 10 important consensus agreements listed and described in Section V are not repeated here.

SECTION IV

COMPARISON OF IMPORTANT AND OVERALL VOTES

This section provides a side-by-side comparison of voting by UN member states on important and overall votes. (Overall votes are discussed more fully in Section II, important votes in Section III.) In the categories below, "Number" indicates the total number of times the United States and the listed state voted the same on an issue, i.e., either Yes/Yes or No/No. "Percent" stands for the voting coincidence percentage, derived by dividing this number by the total of times that the United States and the listed state both voted Yes or No.

SECTION V

CONSENSUS ACTIONS

Reaching consensus on resolutions and decisions has become increasingly important in the UN General Assembly in recent years, and only a minority of all plenary actions are decided by vote. Of the 331 resolutions adopted by the 44th UNGA, 215 (65%) were by consensus. In addition, 57 of 60 decisions adopted were by consensus. Combining resolutions and decisions, the percentage adopted by consensus is almost 70%. Both percentage figures are the highest in recent memory. In contrast, the total number of plenary votes--resolutions, decisions, paragraph votes, motions--fell from 166 at the 43rd UNGA to 143 at the 44th; the number of plenary votes on resolutions and decisions dropped from 138 to 119 in the same period.

The following table illustrates this development:

Resolutions and Decisions
UNGA	Votes	Consensus	Total	Percentage Consensus
41st	158	222	380	58.4%
42nd	154	229	378	60.6%
43rd	138	245	383	64.0%
44th	119	272	391	69.6%

Many important issues, described below, were resolved by reaching consensus at the 44th UNGA. Coming to agreement on these issues can involve considerable time and effort. Their strength is the claim they represent the views of the entire international community. Their weakness is that they can involve compromise at a lowest common denominator.

This section, newly required under PL 101-167, consists of two parts. The first is a list of 10 important consensus actions reached during the 44th UNGA. The second is a statistical table which incorporates these important consensus actions with important votes at the 44th UNGA in order to provide an additional perspective on the degree of support for U.S. positions at the United Nations.

IMPORTANT CONSENSUS ACTIONS

The following 10 issues have been identified as the most important consensus agreements reached during the 44th General Assembly. One of these consensus agreements occurred during the Special Session on Apartheid held December 12-14 in New York; the other nine were plenary GA actions.

These 10 consensus actions cover a broad range of issues, including regional issues (Afghanistan and Southern Africa), peace and security, terrorism and human rights (Afghanistan). All Fifth Committee items were adopted by consensus, including two on reform and the budget. The U.S. cosponsored one resolution (Enhancing International Peace and Security) with the Soviet Union, and sponsored others on periodic and genuine elections, and driftnet fishing.

As with important votes, described in Section III A, information on issues below includes the GA resolution number (or other identification), date of adoption, summary description, and explanation of the U.S. position.

1. Afghanistan

A/Res/15

November 1

Emphasizes the importance of the Geneva Agreements signed on April 14, 1988, and calls for their implementation; welcomes the completion on February 15, 1989, of the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan; reaffirms the right of the Afghan people to determine their own form of government; and calls on all parties concerned to work toward achievement of a comprehensive political solution, cessation of hostilities, and creation of conditions conducive to enabling Afghan refugees to return to their homeland.

The U.S. wishes to encourage the Afghan people to determine their own form of government and to help them achieve a speedy economic and social reconstruction of the country. Since 1979 the GA has adopted 11 resolutions on the situation in Afghanistan; 1988 saw the first consensus adoption of such a resolution, and last fall marked the second. Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan was a major diplomatic achievement, but also only a first step toward the restoration of an independent Afghanistan headed by a government based on self-determination. The U.S. has worked closely with Pakistan and other Islamic nations on this resolution. The Soviet Union accepted Pakistani language in many key portions, and agreed to consensus adoption without debate in plenary.

2. Enhancing International Peace and Security

A/Res/21

November 15

Calls on states to intensify efforts toward ensuring international peace and security through cooperative measures in accordance with the UN Charter, and reaffirms its support for the validity and relevance of the Charter and respect for relevant international principles.

This resolution marks the first major resolution jointly sponsored by the U.S. and the Soviet Union in memory. At the 44th GA it replaced a resolution on CSIS (Comprehensive Approach to Strengthening International Peace and Security in Accordance with the UN Charter) which had been a key issue in previous sessions of the General Assembly. Consensus adoption of this resolution was predicated upon prior Soviet agreement to withdraw, and not reintroduce, its CSIS text.

3. Apartheid: Eradication Through Genuine Negotiations

A/Res/27B

November 22

Reaffirms support for the establishment of a united, non-racial and democratic society in which all people of South Africa will enjoy the same fundamental freedoms and human rights; fully supports the efforts of the South African people to arrive at a peaceful settlement through negotiations; and strongly demands the lifting of the state of emergency and the immediate release of Nelson Mandela.

At the 44th GA, the United States continued to oppose calls for mandatory sanctions against South Africa. In previous GA's, the U.S. often was compelled to vote against many resolutions which came up under the agenda item on apartheid because they contained intemperate language on sanctions, legitimized armed conflict or criticized the U.S. specifically by name. The U.S. was able to join consensus on this resolution, which contained none of these objectionable features and recognized the importance of negotiations in achieving a solution to the problem of apartheid.

4. International Terrorism

A/Res/29

December 4

Condemns all acts of terrorism; urges states and UN organizations to take measures for the elimination of terrorism and its underlying causes; appeals to states to become party to international conventions on terrorism; expresses concern about the growing link between terrorist groups and drug traffickers; and urges intensified ICAO work on plastic explosives detection.

The U.S. supports practical measures against terrorism and condemns all acts of terrorism wherever and by whomever they might be committed. This is a biennial resolution on which consensus was last achieved in 1985. Consensus was reestablished at the 44th GA because, unlike in 1987, it was possible to close sufficiently loopholes which might exculpate liberation groups from responsibility for terrorist acts in certain circumstances.

5. Declaration of the Special Session on Apartheid

Encourages the people of South Africa to join together to negotiate an end to the apartheid system; notes fundamental principles which should be followed by a new constitutional order; calls on South Africa to take steps to create the necessary climate for negotiations; lists guidelines to the process of negotiations; and decides on a program of action.

The United States believes that apartheid must end and that the people of South Africa must, together, find genuine and peaceful solutions to their problems. The U.S. joined consensus on the final declaration, which recognized that changes were taking place in South Africa, and which did not prescribe, mandate or close off options on the path to a democratic, non-racial South Africa.

6. Periodic and Genuine Elections

A/Res/146

December 15

Stresses that periodic and genuine elections are a necessary and indispensable element of sustained efforts to protect the rights and interests of the governed, and that the right of everyone to take part in government is a crucial factor in the effective enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

This was a high-visibility U.S. initiative, introduced and adopted for the second consecutive GA, stressing that elections are a necessary and indispensable right crucial to the enjoyment of a wide range of other human rights and fundamental freedoms. Cameroon, supported by Ghana, Cuba, Nicaragua and Iraq, introduced amendments in committee to weaken the text, and succeeded in obtaining changes in some secondary aspects of the resolution.

7. Human Rights in Afghanistan

A/Res/161

December 15

Calls on the parties to the conflict to respect human life and international humanitarian law, including the Geneva Conventions; urges the release of prisoners of war; and calls on the Afghan authorities to investigate the fate of disappeared persons.

The United States strongly believes that completion of the Soviet troop withdrawal should not be used as a pretext for attempting to end the mandate of the Human Rights Commission (UNHRC) Special Rapporteur, since human rights abuses continue unabated under the current Kabul regime.

8. Efficiency of UN Functioning/Reform

A/Res/200A

December 21

Renews its appeal to member states to demonstrate their commitment to the UN by meeting financial obligations on time and in full; stresses that, in order to carry out successfully the process of reform and restructuring, it is essential that the present financial uncertainties be dispelled; encourages efforts to implement UNGA resolution 41/213 on UN reform; and asks the Secretary General to submit to the 45th UNGA a report assessing the effect of implementation of resolution 41/213 and how it has enhanced the efficiency of the administrative and financial functioning of the UN.

UN reform is a high U.S. priority, and continued implementation of various reform measures is a critically important element in contributing to the effectiveness and long-term financial stability of the UN.

9. Biennium Program Budget for 1990-91

A/Res/202A

December 21

Adopts budget appropriations for the 1990-91 biennium.

The United States is the major contributor to the UN regular budget (25 percent), and consensus agreement on this resolution represented the successful adoption of the new budgeting process approved by the 41st GA. The approved $1.975 billion UN regular budget was below the level agreed at the 43rd GA, reflecting continued restraint by the Secretary General and member states. This resolution mandated a 12% staff reduction and termination of 10 high-level posts.

10. Driftnet Fishing

A/Res/225

December 22

Recommends that the international community agree to: moratoria on all large-scale pelagic driftnet fishing on the high seas by June 30, 1992, unless or until other effective conservation measures are taken; immediate reduction of driftnet fishing in the South Pacific leading to cessation by July 1, 1991; and the immediate cessation of further expansion of driftnet fishing in the North Pacific and all other high seas outside the Pacific Ocean.

Large-scale pelagic driftnet fishing developed unexpectedly into a major issue at the 44th GA. After weeks of intense informal consultations with Japan, the United States and 17 other sponsors achieved a consensus calling for internationally endorsed measures, including a moratorium, to control and mitigate large-scale high seas driftnet fishing.

VOTING COINCIDENCE PERCENTAGES WITH CONSENSUS

The following table incorporates the 16 important votes, discussed in Section III, with the 10 important consensus agreements above, giving equal weight to each vote and consensus agreement. The table below provides a different perspective on the degree of cooperation between the United States and UN member states at the 44th UNGA.

The three categories below are as follows:

-- "Voting coincidence is the percentage when each country is given full credit for all 10 important consensus agreements. Adding 10 to "Identical Votes" in Section III B on "Important Votes" and using the methodology described there yields these results.

-- "Participation Rate." To approximate more closely the degree of each country's involvement in consensus-making activity, this column has been newly developed. It is calculated by totalling the number of Yes/No/Abstain votes cast in plenary and dividing by the total number of plenary votes (143). Countries most frequently absent during votes in the 44th UNGA (and thus with the lowest figures in this column) were Belize, absent 111 times; Comoros, absent 85 times; Equatorial Guinea, 71 times; El Salvador, 58 times; St. Kitts-Nevis, 51 times; and Paraguay, 32 times.

-- "Adjusted Coincidence" uses the "Participation Rate" to modify credit given for consensus agreements. For example, if a country were absent for 14 of the 143 votes in 1989, it would only be given credit for 9.0 consensus agreements rather than 10. The "Adjusted Coincidence" percentage is then calculated on the basis of this adjusted consensus figure.

Although the theoretical range of "Adjusted Coincidence" scores is from 100% to 0%, only a country absent for all 143 votes could score so low (e.g., South Africa). Assuming 100% participation in all votes, the lowest score possible is 38.5%.

The actual range was from Israel, which achieved a high of 95.4%, to Nicaragua, the low at 38.8%, and the average was 54.9%. The 157 UN member states listed here can be grouped as follows: 6 scored 90% or above; 7 were in the 80-89.9% range; 9 were 70-79.9%; 29, 60-69.9%; 54, 50-59.9%; 50, 40-49.9%; and 2 were below 40%.

SECTION VI

SECURITY COUNCIL

In addition to the five Permanent Members--China, France, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom and the United States--the Security Council in 1989 consisted of Algeria, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Ethiopia, Finland, Malaysia, Nepal, Senegal and Yugoslavia.

The Security Council met 69 times in 1989. Of these meetings, 26 were devoted to the situation in the Middle East, including the question of the Israeli-occupied territories; 11 on Namibia; 10 on regional issues, including complaints brought by Panama, Nicaragua and El Salvador; 7 on Afghanistan; and 6 on the U.S. downing of two Libyan aircraft.

The Council adopted 20 of the 25 resolutions considered, 18 of them unanimously. Of the 25, the U.S. voted against (vetoed) five, and abstained on two.

The Security Council adopted five resolutions on Namibia, and throughout the year it closely monitored the progress leading to elections and independence in Namibia. S/Res/628 welcomed the tripartite agreement among Angola, Cuba and South Africa and the bilateral agreement between Angola and Cuba, while S/Res/629 set April 1, 1989, as the date for implementation of S/Res/435 of 1978. S/Res/632, S/Res/640 and S/Res/643 all related to the implementation process.

In November the Security Council adopted S/Res/644 establishing ONUCA (United Nations Observer Group in Central America), a complex operation to assist Central American governments in achieving goals set forth in the 1987 Guatemala Agreement and subsequent joint declarations. These agreements had earlier been endorsed by the Council in S/Res/637.

The Council also extended existing UN peacekeeping forces or observer groups into 1990. S/Res/634 and S/Res/646 extended the stationing of UNFICYP (United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus). The mandate of UNIFIL (United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon) was extended under S/Res/630 and S/Res/639. The mandate for UNDOF (United Nations Disengagement Observer Force) in the Golan Heights was renewed by S/Res/633 and S/Res/645. UNIIMOG (United Nations Iran-Iraq Military Observer Group) was renewed by S/Res/631 and S/Res/642.

The Security Council adopted two anti-terrorism resolutions. The United States fully supported a U.K.-initiated resolution on plastic and sheet explosives, unanimously adopted in June as S/Res/635. The resolution arose in part out of the December 1988 Pan Am crash over Scotland. S/Res/638 unequivocally condemning all acts of hostage-taking and abduction was adopted in July, following reports that U.S. Lt. Col. William Higgins, a UN military observer serving with UNIFIL, had been murdered.

The United States abstained on two resolutions adopted by the Council--S/Res 636 and S/Res/641--regarding deportation of Palestinian civilians by Israel. Following the first, the United States criticized the deportation of eight Palestinians by Israel to Lebanon; it also emphasized the difficult strains placed on Israeli security by the Palestinian uprising and underscored the need to get the negotiation process started. Following the second abstention, the United States reiterated its opposition to deportations but also emphasized that continued recourse to the Security Council would not address the underlying problems or facilitate negotiations.

The United States voted against (vetoed) five draft Security Council resolutions. In the first, a Libyan resolution criticizing the U.S. for shooting down two Libyan aircraft, Canada, France and the United Kingdom also voted against the draft resolution, while Brazil and Finland abstained.

Three other draft resolutions vetoed by the United States all concerned Israel and the occupied territories. Sponsored by the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) members of the Council--Algeria, Colombia, Ethiopia, Malaysia, Nepal, Senegal and Yugoslavia--the resolutions received support from the other 14 members of the Council. In general, the U.S. could not support them because they were unbalanced and one-sided, making sweeping condemnations of Israeli policies and practices without any reference to serious acts of violence by the other side. The texts did not condemn violence from all quarters, and omitted any calls for mutual restraint and respect.

In late December the United States also vetoed a draft resolution introduced by the NAM members of the Council which would have deplored the U.S. intervention in Panama. The U.S. was joined by the United Kingdom, France and Canada in voting against it, and Finland abstained; the other ten Council members supported the resolution.

The Security Council voted six times in 1989 under the provisional rules of procedure on requests by the Palestinian permanent observer to participate in Council debates (January 11, February 10, June 5, July 6, August 30 and November 6). The United States opposed such requests on the grounds that they were not valid, and that under Council rules any request to participate must be made by a UN member state on the observer's behalf. Each time the request (procedurally not subject to veto) was approved by a vote of 11-1 (U.S.)-3 (Canada, France, United Kingdom).

A number of issues debated in the Security Council were never taken to a vote. One was a Soviet proposal in April 1989 for a Security Council resolution on Afghanistan. Also in April, Panama introduced claims of U.S. interference in its elections, and Panama made further allegations against the U.S. in August. A Brazilian initiative for a UN special session on illicit drug trafficking was ultimately taken up and adopted by the General Assembly. In November 1989, El Salvador requested Security Council consideration of cross-border arms shipments, and Nicaragua in turn requested consideration of the deterioration of the Salvadoran peace process.

The Security Council issued 23 consensus statements, endorsed by the United States and delivered by the Council President. The statements were on: Lebanon, 8; Namibia, 6; Cyprus, 3; Central America and UNDOF renewal, 2 each; and Iran-Iraq and hostage-taking, 1 each.
